This year, for the first time in its seven-year history, the prestigious Beyond Sport Awards, supported by Comic Relief, will get their very own spotlight during the event, during a standalone ceremony on the evening the second day of the Beyond Sport Summit. The shortlisted projects, as well as the Winners, will now take centre stage in a night of celebration alongside delegates from around the world.

The ceremony will present the Awards during an engaging show that will both inspire and excite the audience, with the aim to better highlight and celebrate the amazing stories where sport is being used to create positive social change around the world, focusing on issues such as health, social inclusion, conflict resolution and education. In addition to highlighting the hard-working projects and programmes, the ceremony will also celebrate teams, leagues, governing bodies and corporations that are at the forefront of creating social change through sport. Drinks and canapés will be available throughout the evening, as well as a number of exclusive networking opportunities with fellow attendees.

In addition to announcing the Winners across Beyond Sport’s esteemed categories, the event will also see the presentation of two brand-new Awards: the Barclays Sport for Employability Award and the UNICEF Safeguarding Children Award. The Winners of five of the categories will receive funding from the Beyond Sport Foundation, courtesy of Comic Relief, and all Award Winners get a substantial business support package tailored to their need to help them all build and grow their impact.
The third day of the Summit will feature four high-profile sessions which will look at the key areas of conflict where sport can play a role: from local communities and geo-political.
