Joint Pledge on Sport for Inclusion and Protection,
Global Refugee Forum 2023:
Guidance note

I used the power of sports in Afghanistan to stand for my rights and the rights of other women. Now, as a refugee, I am using the same power to support and empower refugee and minority women in Europe. People everywhere play sport. It is often seen as a leisure activity, but for refugees, sport can be a safe space. It can help with physical and mental health and well-being. It can give social support, personal development and skills that can be useful for studies or employment. Sport can also make communication between communities and generations easier, and it can contribute to gender equality. This is especially true for displaced children, youth, women, girls, and persons at risk of exclusion or marginalization, such as persons with disability.

1. Introduction

This guidance note aims to support individuals, organizations, and entities in formulating commitments under the 2023 Global Refugee Forum (GRF) Joint Pledge on Sport, as a contribution towards improving the lives of displaced people.

It will answer the following questions:

- What is the Joint Pledge on Sport?
- How does the Joint Pledge on Sport contribute to the Global Compact on Refugees?
- How can you get involved in the Joint Pledge on Sport?
- What are the benefits of being part of the Joint Pledge on Sport?

Please see page 3 for more information about the GRF and the Global Compact on Refugees.

2. What is the Joint Sport Pledge?

The Joint Pledge on Sport for Inclusion and Protection, facilitated by the Sport for Refugees Coalition (SfRC) presents a refreshed look at the role that sport can play in refugee responses ahead of the Global Refugee Forum in December 2023.

The pledge, developed by a reference group of actors from many sectors engaging with sport and refugees in different ways, is born out of the belief that sport can, and does, make a valuable contribution in displacement contexts.

Everyone within the sport ecosystem has a role to play in improving the lives of refugees and host communities – and together we can achieve far more. For this reason, everyone – from grassroots sports organizations through to national and international organizations – are invited to join the Joint Pledge on Sport.
Together, we pledge to mobilize resources, expertise and networks to promote access to, and opportunities through sport for, and with, displaced people and host communities, contributing to more inclusive, tolerant and cohesive societies.

We will:

1. Promote an enabling environment, including policy, that delivers inclusive access to sport and ensures equitable opportunity to participate and excel by eliminating barriers, addressing inequalities and lack of resources.

2. Promote and provide inclusive, safe, sport and play-based initiatives (including events and competitions) engaging displaced people and host community members of all ages, sexes, genders and abilities, where sport contributes to personal growth, protection, inclusion and cohesion.

3. Promote and provide opportunities for enhanced skills and pathways in and through sport, including training, scholarship and employment opportunities.

4. Using the platform of sport, communicate and advocate for refugee issues and use targeted communications, evidence and research to highlight the positive role sport can play for displaced people at the individual, community and whole of society level.

5. Strengthen partnerships and coordination efforts within and beyond the sport sector to maximize the benefits of sport within and outside of displacement situations.

We are committed to advancing this work with displaced people and communities at all stages of the pledge implementation process.
3. How does the Joint Pledge on Sport contribute to helping refugees?

The refreshed Joint Pledge on Sport in 2023 builds on the success of the 2019 Pledge, and contributes to the objectives of the Global Compact on Refugees (particularly GCR Objective 2: Enhance Refugee Self-Reliance). It is also aligned with recommendations made at the Global Refugee Forum, High Level Officials Meeting in 2021 (marking the mid-point of the first Global Refugee Forum cycle 2019-2023).

The Global Compact on Refugees (GCR) is the main international framework for strengthened international cooperation and solidarity with refugees and affected host communities. It specifically recognizes the contribution of sport and sporting entities in ensuring the protection and well-being of refugees. Following the affirmation of the Global Compact on Refugees by the world’s governments in 2018, the Global Refugee Forum (GRF) was established. The GRF provides states and many other actors with the opportunity to come together every four years to share progress, good practices and contribute financial support, technical expertise and policy changes, to help reach the goals of the Global Compact on Refugees.

4. How can you get involved in the Joint Pledge on Sport?

Step 1: Develop a commitment towards the Joint Pledge under one or more of the 5 pledge commitment areas outlined above, with the support of this Guidance note.

Step 2: Register your commitment on the Global Compact on Refugees online portal (here) and via the Joint Pledge on Sport commitment form (here)

Step 3: Contribute to a collective voice about the role of sport in the context of forced displacement by providing simple annual updates about the progress of your pledge.

5. What is a commitment towards the Joint Pledge on Sport?

Everyone can make a commitment. A commitment is unique to each organization or committing entity. A commitment details the actions you will take and the changes they will make, as a contribution to the overall Joint Pledge on Sport 2023.

- Organizations will contribute to at least one of the commitment areas.
- Organizations can make several commitments to the Joint Sport Pledge.
- Commitments should be needs-based, additional, and measurable.
6. Commitments: Best practice

To make the commitment process easier or provide some inspiration, here are some best practice guidelines and example commitments from across the sector.

Organizations should:

- Ensure the meaningful engagement of refugees during the commitment-making process. Guidance is available here.
- Develop commitments through a consultative process and/or multi-functional team.
- Aim to mobilize your network and encourage others to make their own commitment.

7. What will happen to the data once collected?

Commitments, and annual progress updates, will be collected by the Sport for Refugees Coalition co-conveners. This data will be collated and showcased on the International Platform for Sport and Development (sportanddev.org) and the Global Compact on Refugees Website to demonstrate the collective global effort and contribution of sport to improving the lives of refugees and achieving the objectives of the Global Compact on Refugees. This information will also be used to strengthen the evidence base to inform future advocacy efforts in promoting the role of sport in displacement contexts.

8. What are the benefits of being part of the Joint Sport Pledge?

Committing towards The Joint Pledge on Sport means making a direct contribution towards improving the lives of displaced people, the implementation of the GCR and the Agenda 2030 principle of Leaving No One Behind.

By contributing to a multistakeholder response to displacement, you are also part of a global effort to better protect, include and assist displaced people and hosting communities. A commitment registered for the GRF will be visible on the GRF website, can be noticed by other stakeholders interested in collaboration. Successes related to multi-stakeholder pledges and specific commitments will be highlighted at the next GRF in 2027.

You can also choose to become a member of the Sport for Refugees Coalition (SfRC). The SfRC is an inclusive space for interested organizations working or looking to work in the field of sport and displacement (Learn more about the SfRC here).

As a member of the SfRC, you benefit from:

- Organizational exchanges between members of the Coalition.
- Opportunities to share and gain insights into how sport can contribute in displacement contexts and responses.
- Opportunities to develop new partnerships.
- Collective advocacy for the role sport can play in the context of displacement.
- Visibility for your organisation through the Coalition’s homepage on Sportanddev.
- Being part of a collective voice on the power of sport in displacement contexts.
